

22/2/2012

My Beloved Colleagues Assalamu Alaikum,

FIVE PHASES OF DR. CEMERLANG'S TEACHING METHOD

PHASE TWO

Al-Hamdulillah, in the first phase of her teaching method, Dr. Cemerlang did not face any emotional or psychological problems from her students. (If in case she did, at the end of her class, she would have called those students to her office rendering appropriate counseling with maximum affection.) Therefore, Dr. Cemerlang in her second phases of teaching techniques poses a problem, arouses curiosity and surprises to gain students' attention, Dr. Cemerlang then let her beloved students to start brainstorming session about the current topic. At this stage, Dr. Cemerlang pretends, as she knows nothing and allows her students to be in the center of the class. Dr, Cemerlang has a valid point for taking all these important steps, all she wants is to gain students' attention and make them ready to listen to her presentation.

QUESTION

Why it is so crucial for Dr. Cemerlang to gain her students' attention?

ANSWER

According to the latest sound scientific evidence, gaining attention of students in the classroom is one of the main conditions of effective learning.

REFERENCES

Crumley, G. Schutz, H. (2011). Short-Duration Mindfulness Training with Adult Learners. Adult Learning, v22 n2 p37-42

Wu, R.; Kirkham, N. (2010). No Two Cues Are Alike: Depth of Learning during Infancy Is Dependent on What Orients Attention. Journal of Experimental Child Psychology, v107 n2 p118-136

Kruschke, J.K. (2003). Attention in Learning. Current direction in Psychological Science. 12.171-175

Gabriele, W.& Wolfgang. P. (2001). Directing attention to movement effects enhances learning: A review , Psychonomic Bulletin & Review, Volume 8, Number 4, 648-660

© Dr. Qais Faryadi (FST)

USIM Terus Maju